This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

The second edition of Fame's Tribute to Children has been published under the direction of Mrs. Geo. L. Dunlap, Chairman of the Children's Building Committee, of the Board of Lady Managers, and the proceeds of its sale will be used for a Memorial Fund.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.

IN presenting this volume to the public, a few words as to its origin may not be without interest. When it was decided to erect a Children's Building upon the Exposition grounds, the Board of Lady Managers called for assistance in raising the necessary funds to carry out their project. Among the many ways and means to this end, the idea presented itself that a volume might be compiled of sentiments dedicated to little children by famous men and women, and that an additional interest might be given it by printing these sentiments in fac-simile. Acting upon this idea, a circular containing the following paragraph was printed with the sanction and official recognition of Mrs. Palmer, president of the Board of Lady Managers:

"We appeal to the laurel-crowned of all countries, whose subjects will be partakers of the benefits to be derived from the success of this undertaking, to aid us by contributing to our volume, a verse—even a line; a sketch (be it ever so small),—a dash of the pencil or brush; some thoughts in music, if only a few chords."

This circular, accompanied by one descriptive of the Children's Building, was sent to those whose contributions were desired. The generous response which it received has made this volume possible. We acknowledge with pleasure the debt we owe the many friends who have used their influence to ensure our success, as well as the famous men and women whose sentiments, wherever written, must always command the respect and admiration of all readers. Thanks are especially due the Contessa di Brazza of Italy, Marie Anne de Bovet of France, Prof. and Mrs. Dyer of England and also Mr. Chas. F. Harmon of Chicago, who has generously purchased the original manuscript.

O come across the hill-side, the April-month is here,
The lamb-time, the lark-time, the child-time of the year!

O come into the wide world, for you the Spring is here,
The swift clouds are sailing, the young Earth carols clear.
Come happy heart to wonder,
Come eager hands to plunder
The wide world's store,
The meadows golden glory,
The shining towers of story
On Dreamland's shore;
To reign there all the joy-time, the Spring-time of the year.

When he tried to figure to himself the morning twilight of childhood, so as to deal with it safely, he perceived that it was necessarily arrested, that ignorance, at the instant one touched it, was already flushing faintly into knowledge, that there was nothing that at a given moment you could say a clever child didn't know. Dear Miss Hill

I am delighted to be favoured with a copy of your circular describing the proposed Home for Children at the World's Fair. The idea is most charming and I feel sure your Association will work it into practical form. Never before, that I know of, was such a beneficent plan devised to gladden the children and make happy the mothers. Most Cordially do I wish you a full success.

Very truly Yours

Old Johnny Grundy.

Old Johnny Grundy had a Grey Mare.
Hey! Gee! Whoa!
Her legs were thin & her hide was bare
Hey! Gee! Whoa!

And when she died she made her Will:—
"Now old Johnny Grundy has used me ill;
"Give every dog in the Town a bone,
"But to old Johnny Grundy give thou none."

The Carver came and her image made
In the Market-place where the Children played

And the Parson preached with unction rare:—
"Good people be kind to your old Grey Mare.
"And dont you beat her or use her ill
Hey! Gee! Whoa!
"Or else she'll leave you out of her Will"
Hey! Gee! Whoa!

Rudyard Kipling

The Cradle.

How steadfastly she'd wanted it!
How lovingly had dressed
With all her would-be mother's wit-
That little rosy nest!

How longingly she'd hung on it!-
It sometimes seemed, she said,
Were joy distraught its course to quit-
So like the sleeping dead

It came at last; its tiny guest-
Ere bleak December fled,
That rosy nest its mirth possessed:
Her coffin was its bed.

Happy children!
How much is done
for you now-a-days,
but remember
that while others are helping you
you too must learn to serve. It is a lesson you

Can joyously leave sin, but if neglected it may cost you many a bitter tear when the glad hours

of childhood
are long passed & gone.

We long for them before they are given to us. We love them when they come.
We watch over them

We take any sacrifice

full of joy.
If they would be happy in after years, they should remember all this

Verses written for a Child.

When every stocking was stuffed with dolls, and balls, and rings,
Whistles, and tops, and dogs (of all conceivable things!)
Old Kriss Kringle looked round, and saw on the elm-tree bough, High-hung, an oriole's nest, lonely and empty now.
"Just like a stocking", he laughed, "pinned up there on the tree!
I'll just suppose the birds expected a present from me!"
Then old Kriss Kringle, who knew a joke as well as the best Dropped a handful of flakes in the oriole's empty nest.

The curé answered with a warm smile, saying:

"My boy, God is a very practical God — no, you need not write it; just listen a moment. Yes; and so when he gave us natures like this, he gave men not wives only, but brethren and sisters and companions and strangers, in order that benevolence, yes, and even self-sacrifice, — mistakenly so-called, — might have no lack of direction and occupation; and then bound the whole human family together by putting every one's happiness into some other one's hands. I see you do not understand: never mind; it will come to you little by little. It was a long time coming to me. Let us go in to supper."

So the Friday Club is going to open a Childrens Home? I wish that it may entertain many a young angel unawares. It seems to me that it will be a very good chance for teaching and helping some young mothers who come from lonely places and who have not been able to learn the newest ways of caring for little children and making them happy. Could not some good advice be printed in a brief and simple way after the fashion of Day Nursery rules and given to those who come for the pleased and replete babies at night? I am not sure that the babies aren't going to have the best of it at the great Emporium! Sarah Orne Jewett

A child's candor, simplicity and faith would, in a man, indicate greatness.

The door-yard gate is the dead-line of boyhood for "where there's drink there's danger" and the legalized dram shop dominates the street. Be it our part, as women, to explore "the regions beyond" and to play the part of St George against the dragon to every enemy of childhood outside the door-yard gate.

Les enfants sont à mes yeux ce qui existe de plus sacré. Je trouve qu'on ne les aime pas assez, ou plutôt qu'on les aime mal, qu'on les regarde trop comme des jouets vivants. Je trouve qu'on les brutalise trop, qu'on les gâte trop aussi ; qu'on ne ménage pas assez leur délicatesse nerveuse ; qu'on ne se préoccupe pas suffisamment de leur former le jugement. Je déplore que par étourderie et inconscience, les parents les mieux intentionnés développent dans leurs enfants les pires sentiments, allant même jusqu'à leur suggérer les mauvais instincts qui leur manquent. On ne fera jamais assez pour l'enfance, et j'appelle de tous mes vœux le temps où elle sera mieux comprise et mieux protégée.

With Trumpet and Drum.

With big tin trumpet and little red drum,
Marching like soldiers the children come;
It's this way and that way they circle and file —
Ah! but that music of theirs is fine!
This way and that way, and after a while
They march straight into this heart of mine!

A sturdy old heart, but it has to succumb
To the blare of that trumpet and beat of that drum!

Come on, little people, from east and from hall —
This heart it hath welcome and room for you all!
It will sing you its songs and warm you with love,
As your dear little arms with my arms intertwine;
It will rock you away to the dreamland above —
Oh, a jolly old heart is this old heart of mine,
And jollier still is it bound to become
When you blow that big trumpet and beat that red drum!

So come; though I see not his dear little face

And hear not his voice in his jubilant place,

I know he were happy to bid me enshrine

His memory deep in my heart with your play —

Ah me! but a love that is sweeter than mine

Holdeth my boy in its keeping today!

And my heart it is lonely - O, little folk, come,

March in and make merry with trumpet and drum!

The Boys

Has there any old fellow got mixed with the boys?
If there has, take him out without making a noise.
Hang the Almanacs cheat and the Catalogues spite:
Old Time is a liar! We're twenty tonight!

We're twenty! We're twenty! Who says we are more?
He's tipsy, young jackanapes; — show him the door!
"Gray temples at twenty?" — yes, white, if we please;
Where the snow-flakes fall thickest there's nothing can freeze!

Was it snowing I spoke of? Excuse the mistake!
Look close, — you will see not a sign of a flake!
We want some new garlands for those we have shed,
And these are white roses in place of the red.

We've a trick, we young fellows, you may have been told
Of talking (in public) as if we were old: —
That boy we call "Doctor" and this we call "Judge"
'Tis a neat little fiction, — of course it's all fudge.

That fellow's the Speaker, — the one on the right;
"Mr Mayor," my young one, how are you tonight?
That's our "Member of Congress" we say when we chaff;
There's the "Reverend" — What's his name? — don't make me laugh.

That boy with the grave mathematical look
Made believe he had written a wonderful book,
And the Royal Society thought it was true!
So they chose him right in: a good joke it was too!

There's a boy, we pretend, with a three-decker brain,
That could harness a team with a logical chain;
When he spoke for our manhood in syllables free
We called him "The Justice," but now he's "The Squire."

And there's a nice youngster of excellent pith
Fate tried to conceal him by naming him Smith,
But—he shouted a song for the brave and the free,—
Just read on his medal "My Country of thee"!

You hear that boy laughing?— You think he's all fun;
But the angels laugh too at the good he has done;
The children laugh loud as they troop to his call
And the poor man that knows him laughs loudest of all!

Yes, we're boys, always playing with tongue or with pen,
And I sometimes have asked,—Shall we ever be men?
Shall we always be youthful and laughing and gay
Till the last dear companion drops smiling away?

Then here's to our boyhood, its gold and its grey,—
The stars of its winter, the dews of its May!
And when we have done with our life-lasting toys.
Dear Father, take care of thy children, The Boys.

Iam proud to aver, was so christened by me:

The Wonder-Child.

'Our little babe', each said, 'shall be Like unto thee' – 'like unto thee !'
'Her mother's' – 'Nay, his father's' – 'eyes',
'Dear curls like thine' – but each replies,
'As thine, all thine, a thought of me.'

What sweet solemnity to see
The little life upon thy knee,
And whisper as so soft it lies, –
'Our little babe !'

For, whether it be he or she,
A David or a Dorothy,
'As mother fair', or 'father wise',
Both when it's 'good', & when it cries,
One thing is certain, – it will be Our little babe.

Richard Le Gallienne.

As Little Children.

Loving and simple and sweet and dear,
Such are the guests we would summon here —
Such as the Saviour long since led
When sin-stained souls were gathered, and said —
"If you long for the grace of the undefiled,
You must become as this little child.

Boarded out children

Lizzie was a dark faced half wistful half tamed
little creature with a sullen look &
then a bright one.

The story of many a dreary tramp was written in her face the hardships and troubles of other lives than her own
Do you see any change in her I asked since she came to you? -
Why she have all watered up like said the old woman She do sing now o' mornings & she do begin to curl her hair

So we understands her name is Dobbs not
Stubbs They told us
Stubbs at th' Union
'Tis a Kindness she prateled on to take children from th'
Union & Learn them
If Elizabeth speaks Sarce I obey (shakes of head & other reassuring signals to us) Lizzie I shall take ye back Elizabeth grinned, not looking much alarmed & showed all her white teeth.

It is a wonderful thing to be a child born into a world to which the boundless unfathomable love of God has been revealed; and every child so born has a right to the revelation. We, who are their grown up caretakers are responsible that they receive it, and we ought to be telling them of it, over and over, throughout every day and every hour of their young lives. Not that we are to be always preaching it, but we must be always living it in their presence, by a life of unfailing and unselfish love and tenderness. Acts speak to a child's mind far more powerfully than words; and they will judge of the God and Father, about whom we preach to them, by what they see in us. Let us see to it that we always and everywhere reveal Him as the God of love.

"What does Josey say," inquired she, "to the lady who gave him cake?"

Josey stared at her in shocked surprise. Could she not see that he was eating?— disobeying in the only conspicuous way which (as she surely must have known) he took as great outrage & satisfaction? Nay, even upon the lowest ground, who could be expected to reply to abstract questions who has his mouth filled with sweet cake?

"Now what does Josey say when his good & kind friend has cake?" repeated the little tyrant more passionately than before.

Of our souls down the ages; to bleed for it, proof
That souls we have, with our senses filled,
Our shuttles at thread of the woof.

In the nursery

'Where do you go, Bob, when you're fast asleep?'
'Where? Oh all over I went in a deep Mine, father told of, and a cross man said
He'd make me help to dig a lot block head.
– I saw the Queen once, in her room, quite near.
She said "you rude boy Bob, how came you here?";
"Was it like mother's boudoir?"
Grander far
Gold chairs and things – all over diamonds – Oh!
"You're sure it was the Queen?"
"Of course, a crown
Was on her, and a spangly purple gown"
"I went to heaven last night,
O Lily, pic,
How could you?"
"Yes I did, they told me to,
And my best doll my favorite, with the blue Frock, jasmine, I took her to heaven too"

'What was it like?' 'I don't tell
A sort of orchard place, in a long dell,
With trees all over flowers, and there were birds
Who could do talking: by soft fluting words;
They let me stroke them, & I showed it all
To Josiane. And I heard a blue dove call "Child this is heaven" I was not frightened when It spoke, I said "Where are the angels then?"
'Well?' So it said "Look up & you shall see"
There were two angels sitting on the tree,
As tall as mother; they had long gold hair
They let drop down that grain they gathered there
And little Angels came for it — so sweet —
Here they were boys as children in the street
And the dove said they had the prettiest things
And wore their best frocks every day.' 'And wings?
Had they no wings?'
'Yes & lined with white
Like swallow wings, so soft, so very light —
Fluttering about.' 'Well?' 'Well I said not to stay
'So that was all' — 'They made you go away?'

'I did not go— but— I was gone'

'I know

But it's a pity Bob we never go together' 'yes I have no dreams to tell

But the next day both know we all quite well'

'And Bob if I could dream you come with me

You would be there perhaps—'

Perhaps— will see

Now I began this sermon
with no idea of writing any thing, and behold!
I stand on the verge of a sermon. Such is the forcefulness of habit, and you must excuse an old man when you consider that I have been at this sermonizing for 54 years. It is hard to get out of old habits.

I don't know what your idea of a "sweet little note" is, but you may extract
a drop of sweetness from this sermon, and why?
Because it tells of "our Father" in the first words we learn, the last we fully understand. But yet it is the theme and sweetness of all life. "The will of the Father is the weal of the Universe" — a thought much larger than "The Exposition."

Surely the Christ-child has visited Chicago hearts & homes. ~~who~~ Those could lead you to devise such plans for the comfort of those whom the dear Lord calls His little ones? Love child songs, with pleasant rhyme
And quaintest songs, to mark the time,
As the little feet shall climb
Up the hill so long & steep,
Leading to the mysteries deep,
Which the sacred volumes keep.

Low the ladder's first round: high,
Its tall top against the sky:
Baby 'll climb there by and by;
And, climbing, come at last to know,
How the distance seems to grow
Farther, as we higher go.

Here we only spell, at best,
Little words, with keenest zest,
Wondering at all the rest:
Some day when our study's done,
Standing by the Master's throne,
We shall know, as we are known.

Sonnets to Children.

I

Happy those men and women who can say:—
"Our child-selves still our Guardian angels are.
"That clear ideal like some morning star,
"Still radiant though invisible by day:
"Our Spirit-eyes discern, and all the way
"Is blest by memories shining from afar;
"Deep, childish aspirations that no jars
"Of worldly-hopes can ever wholly slay.
—"When eager for some selfish happiness,
"We grow self-lenient, talk of just desire,
"The sovereign right of individual need,—
"Ah, then it is we turn with-tears & bless
"Those innocent child aims that draw us higher
"And show our zone o' th' world to be a weed.

For lo! a little child shall lead us, Cry
With deeper wisdom than an emperor
Were't Caesar's self more Caesar than before Death crowned him with a fame that cannot die.
— With true philosophy, more clear, more high
Than ever Plato taught: with wondrous lore
Conned from that book on which the angels pore,
Cast traced by God in stars upon the sky.
— That God is love, and more, that love is God.
To this can children lead us if we will;
This is the riddle of eternity,
Which children read as simply as a sod
Blossoms without a gardeners meddling skill.
For children are what good men long to be!

My Three Vikings

Three little lonely Vikings
Came sailing over the sea
From a cruel & distant country,
And put into port with me

The first — how well I remember —
Sir Hjalmar was the knight,
With a hearty Norseland war-whoop
He came in the dead of night

He heeded no creature's pleasure
But acted with a conqueror's right
He sang in the small hours of morning
And dined in the middle of night.

Then crowned with delight our chief;
So well he liked his home
He summoned his prosperity
From the realm beyond the foam.
And he is a laughing tyrant,
With dimples & golden curls
He stole a march on our heart-gates,
And made us his subjects & churls.

And Bayard, the last of my Vikings,
Is Shakespeare on your scene!
With your sturdy & quaint little figure
What havoc you wrought when you came.

There's a chieftain in you—a leader
Of men, in some glorious path
Dan Gauntlet, you are a thunder
And dignified in your wrath.

Curly Locks.

Curly locks, curly locks, what angel brought you
Down to this world in your mischievous glee?
Curly locks, curly locks, what angel thought you
Just the right gift for your father and me.
Nobody wanted you; no one invited you;
You were quite welcome to stay up above;
Yet you arrived, and then who could have slighted you.
Bringing as luggage a bundle of love.

Curly locks, curly locks, tell me who taught you
That wicked glance of your roguish blue eyes?
Are you quite sure 'twas an angel who brought you,
You imp of mischief in baby disguise?
Why did the angels with kisses half smother
You, who now reign as my nursery queen?
See, here's a dimple, and here is another!
Each dimple shows where a kiss must have been!

Curly locks, curly locks, made up of laughter,
Merriment, nonsense, caresses, and fun,
Just a few tears that the smiles follow after,
Quickly as dew-drops are chased by the sun
Knowing yet nothing of sorrow and sadness,
Guessing at nothing of envy and strife;
Long may it be ere Time, stifling your gladness,
Brushes the bloom from your innocent life.

Lullaby.

O Mary, Mother, if the day we trod
In cohorts sweet the lily fields of God,
From earth afar arose a cry of pain,
Should we not weep again?

(Sings) Hush, hush, O baby mine,
Mothers twain are surely Thine,
One of earth and one divine.

O Mary, Mother, if the day the air
Was sweet with songs celestial, came a prayer
From earth afar and mingled with the strain,
Would we not pray again?

(Sings) Sleep, sleep, my baby dear,
Mothers twain are surely near,
One to pray and one to hear.

O Mary, Mother, if, as yesternight
A bird sought shelter at my casement light,
A wounded soul should flutter to thy breast,
Would'st Thou refuse it rest?

(Sings) Sleep, darling, peacefully;
Mary, Mother, comforts me;
Christ, her Son, hath died for thee.

Il n'y a peut-être d'autre problème dans la mesure où l'enfance de l'homme est le seul endroit où il peut être comme la fleur et le fruit dans le bourgeon. Façonné, tandis qu'il est malléable, le cerveau de l'enfant aura aussi peut-être réformé le cœur de l'homme.

CHAMBRE
DES DÉPUTÉS

Paris, 17 novembre

Madame,

Agréez encore le malheur de perdre complètement enfonché je ne puis toucher à ce sujet sans un grand serrement de cœur. Vous me ressemblez beaucoup à vous vie qu'il n'y a de plus grande douleur que de survivre à ceux qu'on aime, à ceux qui seuls avec vous partageaient à vous fermer les yeux -

Veuillez agréer, je vous prie,
Madame, mes respectueux hommages.

A. Méjan

Enfance, heureuse enfance si naïve et si pure, jeunesse si généreuse et si droite, est il possible que le caprice des circonstances sur lesquelles votre volonté n'a point eu de prise, en arrive à pervertir et à vous point les instincts de votre nature! Est il possible que le hasard d'être né dans telle

famille, peut-être même dans telle me plutôt que dans telle autre, nous condamne en quelque sorte fata lement à la misère et au crime (L'Enfance. Gau)

Maupassant

Le malheur de l'enfance
est particulièrement intéressant.
Il est poignant de penser que beaucoup de ces chers petits êtres qu'on voudrait toujours les lèvres roses et le visage épanoui ne
pleurent déjà plus tant ils ont souffert.

Donne ! L'homme et puisque divin,
Lui, n'ayant dit non à personne,
A froid, quand le pauvre frissonne
Et défaille quand il a faim.

Donne sans vouloir qu'on te rende,
Donne en oubliant qui reçoit.
Le plus noble geste qui soit
Est d'ouvrir la main toute grande.

Il est bon de ne pas faire raisonner trop tôt l'enfant; le premier usage qu'il fait de la raison est de l'employer à discuter ses devoirs.

Comme Dieu, le Bonheur se cache à ses élus ;
Invisible et présent, ils le cherchent encore :
Aussi longtemps que l'homme est heureux, il l'ignore
Et ne sait qu'il l'était que quand il ne l'est plus.

Edouard Pailleron

28 Novembre 1892

Devant le théâtre des marionnettes, sur nos promenades publiques, un petit monde d'enfants est assemblé, attentif, palpitant. Ils s'attristent, se passionnent ou tremblent, en voyant les pantins de bois sangloter, disputer, batailler. Un homme d'âge, un homme posé, un puissant ministre peut-être passe, s'approche, regarde en souriant les vains fantoches et les petits qui s'y laissent prendre. Eh! bonhomme, que faites-vous de mieux? Que sommes nous de plus que ces enfants, quand nous livrons nos âmes, toutes sérieuses et émues, au jeu du politique, de l'amoureux, du glorieux, du commissaire et de la Colombine? Nous sourions derrière ces innocents, qui s'amusent de si peu ; et derrière nous, dans l'invisible, passent peut-être les âmes libérées des sages, qui rient de nous à leur tour, qui frémissent en grande pitié la pantomime du monde et de ses graves spectateurs.

E. M. de Vogüé

— Complet, mon cœur ! Un l'avoir pour tout entier .. Une sacrifice quelqu'un aimer, ce quelqu'un plus que vous !.. Un n'en viendrai jamais à bout !..

— Oh ! que si !

— Oh ! que non !.. Aimer autrement... peut-être ?.. mais plus, non. Qu'il ne Cangeste pas le Dessus, ce monsieur que j'attends et qui n'arrive pas.

— Je comprends rien, mon Betty. Il y aura place dans votre Cœur pour tous ceux qui vous devez aimer, pour votre mari, pour vos enfants, et celui-ci vous ne dérangera rien ; mais, votre Cœur, C'est tout petit, le Cœur, et c'est très grand.

Ludovic Halévy

L'Abbé Constantin.

Les grands faits historiques apparaissent à travers les siècles comme les hautes montagnes de devient à l'horizon deux aspects changent à chaque instant suivant le jour qui les éclaire, et d'un point à un autre d'après la distance qui les sépare du spectateur qui les regarde est-on à leur pied et tout proche ? On en saisit, on voit le détail, mais quand on vient s'éloigner on en mesure mieux l'élévation et le profil se détache plus nettement des faits d'hier sont presque trop bien connus pour être toujours bien appréciés, car trop de lumière éblouit les regards et empêche de voir la place surtout quand il est glorieux est enveloppé d'une brume qui en rend la majesté plus touchante Aussi s'explique-t-on que les impressions de la postérité soient parfois plus justes que celles des contemporains

Duc de Broglie
(Préface de la journée de Fontenoy)

Fragment d'un Discours prononcé par moi à Lyon le 25 Juin 1867.

"... - Si les dures nécessités de la vie obligent d'envoyer la femme et l'enfant à l'usine, que ce soit le plus tard possible. Chercher à faire de la femme une bonne ouvrière, c'est bien; mais donner à son mari des habitudes et un salaire qui la dispenserait de vivre au dehors, ce serait mieux encore. Elle est la providence intérieure; qu'elle travaille au foyer domestique; qu'elle se livre aux soins du ménage et des enfants; qu'elle prépare à celui qui peine et fatigue pour tous, un joyeux retour: voilà la tâche que Dieu lui a faite. L'enfant est l'espoir de la famille et de la patrie; mais la femme est la famille même. Soutenons leur faiblesse; ménageons leurs forces et ne laissons pas l'industrie, pour s'enrichir plus vite, lever une dîme funeste sur la santé de l'une et la moralité de l'autre. Puisse ce vœu être entendu des représentants de l'Univers industriel rassemblé en ce moment à Paris pour constater toutes les victoires de l'esprit sur la matière. S'ils reconnaissaient leurs efforts pour provoquer une convention sainte qui, égalisant les conditions du travail entre les nations, comme on égalise entre elles les conditions du trafic; ferait limiter, entre tous pays, les efforts demandés à l'enfant et à celle qui doivent être des mères, ils ajouteraient une gloire nouvelle à notre exposition.

Puis, après que les princes et les empereurs seraient partis, avec les multitudes accourues sur leurs pas; quand les magnificences auraient cessé, à la place du colossal monument, on pourrait élever l'image d'une femme et d'un enfant tendant à l'industrie leurs mains reconnaissantes"

V. Durny

Mon fils Samuel (3 ans et demi) à sa mère, qui lui disait que le bon Dieu le regardait faire le méchant :

— « Non, maman, il y a le plafond, il peut pas me voir ! »

Pierre Loti

Hendaye, octobre 92

Après avoir embrassé et béni
les petits enfants, le Sauveur dit
" Leurs anges voient toujours la
" face du Père (S. Matthieu XVIII. 10)
C'est-à-dire que les âmes
des petits enfants, ramenées par le baptême à l'innocence primitive, sont en communion immédiate avec l'être et avec la sainteté de Dieu.

Cette parole a encore un
autre sens.

Elle signifie que l'enfant
est porté par une loi instinctive de sa nature à pratiquer la méthode philosophique en vertu de laquelle nous cherchons toujours à nous élever de la connaissance des effets à la connaissance de la cause.

De là, les questions qui jaillissent à tout propos, comme d'une source intarissable

des profondeurs de l'âme enfantine.
Pourquoi, au printemps, les arbres se couvrent-ils de fleurs ? Pourquoi dans l'automne, les fleurs sont-elles remplacées par les fruits ?
Pourquoi les vicissitudes du jour et de la nuit, de la lumière et des ténèbres ?

C'est par ces interminables questions que l'âme de l'enfant s'efforce de connaître la raison des choses, et elle ne s'arrête dans ses recherches que lorsqu'elle est arrivée à la cause au-delà de laquelle il n'y a plus rien.

Voilà comment ces petits êtres vont
au Père céleste par une naturelle et comme invincible impulsion ; de sorte que remplacer en eux la foi par le doute, l'adoration par le blasphème, la prière de louanges par les négations dédaigneuses, c'est un crime contre nature, digne de toute exécration.

de Dieu — prononcé à Lyon le 14 novembre 1882)

A un enfant.

. . . . . .

Et puis, bien plus longtemps, quand ton heure dernière
Refroidira ton cœur et clora ta paupière,
Si tu veux être élu pour les jours éternels,
Si tu veux, gravissant les routes éternelles,
Pousser ton aile ardente à des splendeurs nouvelles,
Si tu veux suivre encor tous tes désirs élevés,
Si tu veux, sans Son aide que Dieu te fasse grâce,
Lorsque, te demandant, tout bas, le mot de passe,
L'ange blanc de la mort se penchera vers toi,
Réponds lui, sans trembler : — Amour, travail et foi ! —

Ici-bas

Ici-bas tous les lilas meurent,
Tous les chants des oiseaux sont courts;
Je rêve aux étés qui demeurent
Toujours...

Ici-bas les lèvres effleurent
Sans rien laisser de leur velours,
Je rêve aux baisers qui demeurent
Toujours...

Ici-bas tous les hommes pleurent
Leurs amitiés ou leurs amours;
Je rêve aux couples qui demeurent
Toujours...

« Prenez cet enfant, élevez-le pour moi, vous recevrez votre récompense »
Exode C II V 9

« La fille de Pharaon avait porté ses pas sur les bords du Nil; elle était suivie des jeunes Egyptiennes qui formaient sa cour.
Tout à coup, du milieu des roseaux, s'échappe un cris plaintif. Elle s'approche et aperçoit, dans une corbeille d'osier, un enfant d'une rare beauté. A cette vue, son cœur s'émeut; elle fait appeler une femme étrangère qui se tenait à l'écart, et, sans se douter que c'était la véritable mère, elle lui dit: Prenez cet enfant, élevez-le pour moi; vous recevrez votre récompense.
« Ravissante image de la Charité, qui,
elle aussi, est fille de roi, mais d'une race

La joie suprême de la vie, plus

Les enfants sont de petits hommes et de petites femmes, avec tous les vices des grandes sans leurs vertus. Mais ils ont l'innocence de leurs vices, qui désarme, et ils ont le charme qui plus que la vertu fait aimer.
